

Women Athletes Business Network

For all the places sport will take you

EY has a long history of driving the global dialogue around the advancement of women. With the Women Athletes Business Network, we are using our experience to harness the often untapped leadership potential of elite women athletes.

From elite female athletes to exceptional leaders

At EY, we believe that elite women athletes represent an often untapped source of leadership potential in the workplace. The EY Women Athletes Business Network seeks to harness this potential by connecting elite women athletes, both currently competing and retired from sport, with business leaders to build powerful relationships, open doors, and uncover new leadership opportunities and career paths.

Our goal is to create an environment that supports elite female athletes who seek to develop their leadership potential from the field to the boardroom. As members of the network, women athletes will receive exclusivity, support and opportunity.

- ▶ Exclusivity – Members are a part of an exclusive community of elite female athletes and have access to some of the most powerful men and women in business.
- ▶ Support – Members will receive advice, support and potential one-on-one mentorship opportunities during their transition from sport to professional life and in their future leadership development.
- ▶ Opportunity – Members have the opportunity to grow their networks and reach their professional goals by connecting with other elite athletes and business leaders.
