Our planet depends on clean water

Water is the lifeblood of our planet. It is essential in supporting human life, nourishing indispensable habitats and supplying agriculture and industry. In order to accomplish these crucial tasks, water must be kept clean. The amount and availability of clean water has become one of the greatest challenges of our time. World Rowing believes that we all have a responsibility to apply environmentally-sustainable practices to our use and management of water.

Rowing is a clean water sport and everyone involved in rowing has reason to protect this vital resource.

In 2011 World Rowing and WWF, the World Wide Fund for Nature, formed a global clean water partnership. This engages all rowers, rowing clubs and national rowing federations to work towards safeguarding their freshwater environments.

A joint action project, the Kafue River & Rowing Centre is a manifestation of this partnership. This project was inspired by the confluence of many pressures and problems in the Kafue River in Zambia and the need to bring all stakeholders together to discuss and help find solutions.

The development of a multi-purpose facility for water management education and research and the advancement of rowing in the region is underway. The global rowing community is at the forefront of a fundraising campaign to help establish the centre.

World Rowing Sustainability Award

World Rowing endeavours to protect the environment, which is not only vital to the sport, but to human life. The Sustainability Award was created in 2018 to recognise members of the rowing community who work to protect and preserve their local environment.

The Award is open to member federations, clubs, event organising committees or other rowing organisations that have implemented an innovative project to deliver a positive sustainability impact, or that are demonstrating sound sustainability practices on an ongoing basis.

The inaugural Award was presented at the 2018 World Rowing Awards Gala. The winner was the 'Love Where You Row' project, implemented by Alan Robinson and the Schuylkill Navy. Love Where You Row is in its fourth year and has helped clean up Philadelphia's Schuylkill River in the United States. This ongoing venture included two major regattas that implemented a zero waste and zero litter initiative.

Nominations for the World Rowing Sustainability Award open annually in July via the World Rowing website. The organisation can be nominated by its own members or another individual or organisation.

The winner of the Award will be selected by the Sustainability panel, made up of representatives of the Sustainability Department of the International Olympic Committee, WWF International, FISA President Jean-Christophe Rolland and Olympic Champion and Kafue River and Rowing Centre Ambassador, Kim Brennan.

The prize will be awarded at the World Rowing Gala, held annually in November.

2.2 Boat classes & scoring

The World Rowing Cup, in its current form, was established by FISA in 1997 to give athletes more opportunities for top international racing. It is a series of three regattas that acts as a lead-up to the World Rowing Championships. The racing programme in Rotterdam includes the 14 Olympic boat classes, seven para-rowing boat classes and a selection of International boat classes.

Olympic and World Rowing Cup boat classes

Men

Single Sculls (M1x)	Single Sculls (W1x)
Double Sculls (M2x)	Double Sculls (W2x)
Lightweight Double Sculls (LM2x)	Lightweight Double Sculls (LW2x)
Quadruple Sculls (M4x)	Quadruple Sculls (W4x)
Pair (M2-)	Pair (W2-)
Four (M4-)	Four (W4-)
Eight (M8+)	Eight (W8+)

Women

International boat classes

Men

Lightweight Single Sculls (LM1x)	Lightweight Single Sculls (LW1x)
Lightweight Pair (LM2-)
Lightweight Quadruple Sculls (LM4x)	Lightweight Quadruple Sculls (LW4x)

Women

Para-rowing boat classes

Para Men's Single Sculls (PR1 M1x & PR2 M1x)
Para Women's Single Sculls (PR1 W1x & PR2 W1x)
Para Mixed Double Sculls (PR2 Mix2x)
Para Mixed Coxed Four (PR3 Mix4+)
Para Men's Pair (PR3 M2-)

Each Olympic boat class earns points based on the finishing order. The highest placing boat from a country is awarded the following points:

1st	8 points
2nd	6 points
3rd	5 points
4th	4 points
5th	3 points
6th	2 points
7th	1 point

If a country has more than one crew in a boat class, points will be awarded only to the first crew. The crew with the most points in each boat class is declared the World Rowing Cup leader and receives the yellow 'World Rowing Cup Leader Bib.' After the third World Rowing Cup regatta, the crew with the most points in each boat class is declared the World Cup winner and receives the World Rowing Cup for that boat class.

At the end of each World Cup, the country with the most points will be declared winner of that World Rowing Cup regatta and will receive the leading nation cup. The nation with the most points overall from all boat classes is declared overall winner of the 2019 World Rowing Cup.

3 Who to watch

Women's Pair (W2-)

This boat class has an impressive 20 entries. The Kiwi pair of Grace Prendergast and Kerri Gowler were back on top at their first race of the season, the World Rowing Cup in Poznan. In the absence of the 2018 World Champion crew from Canada, the door may be open for the Kiwis to reclaim their throne this season.

Prendergast and Gowler will face a tough race from the Australian pair of Jessica Morrison and Annabelle McIntyre. This duo recently finished just a few seconds behind the Kiwis at Poznan. With a bit more time training together, they might challenge for the top of the podium.

The Oceania crews will face the 2019 European Champions from Spain, Aina Cid and Virginia Diaz Rivas, for the first time this season. They'll also expect a challenge from two top Romanian pairs. The European silver medallist line-up from Romania has not been entered, but with two new combinations, Romania is likely to show speed. Watch out too for the Netherlands, they won the first World Rowing Cup this season.

Men's Pair (M2-)

The World and European Champions, the Sinkovic brothers, did not race at the second World Rowing Cup due to injury, but are back for this World Cup. Instead at the second World Cup, the crews from Australia and New Zealand stepped up to the podium.

For Rotterdam, Australia has entered two new crews, both with top sweep rowers. Alexander Hill and Spencer Turrin are Australia 1 with Joshua Hicks and Sam Hardy rowing as Australia 2. Three of these rowers are World Champions from the men's four. New Zealand has returned with Thomas Murray and Michael Brake who were second at World Rowing Cup II.

Watch out too for the European silver medallists from Romania, Ciprian Tudosa and Marius-Vasile Cozmiuc who are entered, as well as top crews from Great Britain and the Czech Republic.

Women's Double Sculls (W2x)

There are 14 crews entered and in the absence of World Rowing Cup II winners, New Zealand there are a number of crews that have the ability to step up.

Australia's crew of Amanda Bateman and Genevieve Horton finished third at the World Rowing Cup in Poznan and are likely to compete for the medals again. They will be challenged by Ellen Tomek and Meghan O'Leary of the United States who finished fourth in Poznan and have a heap of experience to their names.

Watch out too for the European Champions from Germany, Leonie Menzel and Carlotta Nwajide. They have had mixed results, finishing in the B-final at the second World Rowing Cup. But if they find their European Championship magic, they are likely to find the podium as well. And don't count out Romania. They are silver medallists from the European Championships.

Men's Double Sculls (M2x)

The Swiss combination of Barnabe Delarze and Roman Roeoesli are having a great season so far. They finished with a silver medal at the European Rowing Championships before winning gold at the second World Rowing Cup. They might be the crew to beat in Rotterdam, but it won't be easy.

Poland has had mixed results so far this season. Fabian Baranski and Miroslaw Zietarski of Poland became European Champions ahead of the Swiss, but they changed their line-up for the second World Rowing Cup and finished fourth. Zietarski will race with Mateusz Biskup in Rotterdam and it is anyone's guess where they will finish.

Watch out too for Great Britain and Germany. The British crew of Thomas Graeme and John Collins won silver at the World Rowing Cup in Poznan and look to have found good speed. And the new German combination of Tim Ole Naske and Stephan Krueger was just a second behind to take bronze in Poznan. They will also challenge for the medals in Rotterdam.

Women's Four (W4-)

There are 14 crews entered, with several nations entering multiple line-ups. The Danish showed they are on-form by winning at the second World Rowing Cup in Poznan, ahead of China and Australia. Denmark also knocked the reigning World Champions from the USA off the podium.

The Australians are also a crew to watch. They've won silver at the 2018 World Rowing Championships and came into this season by winning bronze at the second World Rowing Cup.

Don't forget about the Netherlands. They are the 2019 European Champions and have entered the same line-up for Rotterdam. Watch out too for Romania and Poland. They have already been on the podium this year and will be medal contenders in Rotterdam.

Men's Four (M4-)

Australia is reigning World Champions. With nearly a new line-up at World Rowing Cup II, they won gold.

Australia beat fast crews from Italy, Poland and Great Britain. Italy is not entered in Rotterdam, which opens the doors for Poland and Great Britain to challenge for the podium. Great Britain won gold at the European Rowing Championships and with more time rowing together, they probably have found even more speed.

Poland has settled on a line-up and the crew seems to be gelling well together. Watch out too for Germany. They have some big names in the boat and they won a bronze medal at the European Championships.

Women's Single Sculls (W1x)

This will be the first time that many of the top single scullers race each other. Reigning World and European Champion Sanita Puspure of Ireland is probably the one to beat. Puspure took the world by surprise when she claimed the 2018 World Championship title ahead of 2017 World Champion, Jeannine Gmelin of Switzerland.

Gmelin and Puspure will race against former World Champion Emma Twigg of New Zealand for the first time in three years. Twigg is making her comeback for the 2020 Olympic Games and she started with a bang at the World Rowing Cup in Poznan by finishing first.

Watch out too for Miroslava Topinkova Knapkova. The Czech Olympic Champion from 2012 has been rising in the ranks. She finished with a bronze medal at the European Championships, just behind Puspure and Gmelin. Keep an eye out too for Lisa Scheenaard of the Netherlands. Scheenaard has a handful of medals to her name and will be encouraged by her home crowd.

Men's Single Sculls (M1x)

This boat class has really had a shake up. Denmark's Sverri Nielsen has been working his way up the ranks and finished first at World Rowing Cup II. Nielsen might just be the one to beat if he manages to maintain his speed.

Croatia's Damir Martin has had mixed results, finishing first at the first World Rowing Cup, but falling to fifth at the European Championships. If he's on form, he is likely to challenge for the medals. It's a similar story for the reigning World Champion, Kjetil Borch of Norway. Borch has been struggling with injury and is working his way back to full-form. He finished sixth at the last World Rowing Cup, but it wouldn't be surprising to see him even faster in Rotterdam.

Don't count out Robert Manson of New Zealand either. Manson beat out two-time Olympic Champion Mahe Drysdale for the New Zealand team spot in the men's single, but he finished in the B-final at his first international appearance. Manson will be hoping to improve on that score in Rotterdam. Oliver Zeidler of Germany and Ondrej Synek of the Czech Republic are both also likely to put up good races. The men's single will certainly be one to watch.

Lightweight Women's Double Sculls (LW2x)

The home crowd will be cheering for the poster women of the World Rowing Cup in Rotterdam, Ilse Paulis and Marieke Keijser. Their image has been plastered on a huge building in the middle of the city and as this is their first international race together for 2019, the pressure must be great. Keijser has been side-lined due to injury and she's now back with Paulis. The duo won bronze at last year's World Rowing Championships.

Paulis and Keijser will go up against the New Zealand combination of Jackie Kiddle and Zoe McBride. After struggling in the 2018 season, Kiddle and McBride look to be back on form, having won the second World Rowing Cup ahead of Italy and China. Italy is not entered in Rotterdam, but China will certainly challenge for the medals. The crew of Dandan Pan and Wenyi Huang line up for a second time this season with Pan also in the boat that won at World Rowing Cup I.

Watch out too for Frederique Rol and Patricia Mertz of Switzerland. They finished third at the European Rowing Championships, but were relegated to the B-final at the second World Rowing Cup after a tough semifinal.

Lightweight Men's Double Sculls (LM2x)

There are 24 entries in this boat class and all eyes will be on the new German sensations, Jason Osborne and Jonathan Rommelmann. Osborne and Rommelmann have already proved themselves this season by becoming European Champions and winning at the second World Rowing Cup.

Australia's crew of Hamish Parry and Leon Chambers finished third at the World Rowing Cup in Poznan and will certainly have a podium chance in Rotterdam. They'll also have steep competition from Belgium's Tim Brys and Niels van Zandeweghe. The Belgians won the first World Rowing Cup and have a stack of medals to their names.

Watch out too for Norway. Are Strandli and Kristoffer Brun haven't competed together since the 2018 World Rowing Championships where they finished 5th. But they are regulars on the podium and are likely to challenge for a medal. And keep an eye on a new Irish combination of Paul O'Donovan and Fintan McCarthy. They might just be faster than the O'Donovan brothers.

Women's Quadruple Sculls (W4x)

This will be a tough race to call. China, won the first two World Rowing Cups, is not entered in Rotterdam. That will make room for a battle between Germany, Poland and the Netherlands.

Germany won the European Rowing Championships in fine form, then finished in third at the second World Rowing Cup in Poznan. Poland, who are the reigning World Champions, got the better of them by just a fraction of a second to finish with the silver medal behind China. But Poland finished fourth a few weeks earlier at the European Rowing Championships.

The Netherlands won silver at the European Rowing Championships and sent an under-23 crew to the World Rowing Cup in Poznan, where they finished in fifth. The silver medal crew is back to race in front of their home crowd.

Men's Quadruple Sculls (M4x)

Poland won the first and second World Rowing Cups of the season. They are one of the 11 crews set to compete in Rotterdam and are one of the favourites to take home a medal. They will, however, go up against the Dutch for the first time this season.

The Netherlands crew recorded a convincing win at the European Rowing Championships, ahead of Italy and Great Britain, and in Rotterdam, they will have the encouragement of the home crowd to help with their speed.

Both Poland and the Netherlands will have to fend off the crews from Oceania though. Australia finished second at the World Rowing Cup in Poznan with New Zealand taking third. Both crews look to be on form this season. And don't forget about Great Britain and Germany. They have been at the edge of the podium a couple times this season and historically are fast in this boat class.

Women's Eight (W8+)

Australia surprised the field by taking gold at their first international race this season, the World Rowing Cup in Poznan. They beat the reigning World Champions from the United States as well as world silver medallists from Canada.

The United States is not entered in Rotterdam, leaving the door open for medal challenges from Great Britain and New Zealand. Great Britain finished third at World Rowing Cup II, just ahead of New Zealand.

Watch out too for Romania. They won the European Championships, then did not race in Poznan. They have had mixed results over the last two years and must be looking for crew stability.

Men's Eight (M8+)

The Germans maintained their winning streak at the second World Rowing Cup and come to Rotterdam as favourites. The British, however, have come close twice this year with two silver medals. Will they be able to beat Germany?

The United States has entered a crew for the first time this year. They will be looking to see where they measure up before the Olympic qualification at the World Rowing Championships. Watch out too for the Netherlands. They finished third at the European Rowing Championships. And don't count out the New Zealanders. They have Hamish Bond and Mahe Drysdale on board and finished fourth at the second World Rowing Cup.

Lightweight Women's Single Sculls (LW1x)

The lightweight women's single sculls has an impressive 18 entries. Australia's Georgia Nesbitt could be the one to beat. She finished third at the World Rowing Cup a few weeks ago. New Zealand's Sophie MacKenzie is making a comeback, racing for the first time since the 2016 Rio Olympics. Watch out too for Great Britain's Imogen Grant.

Lightweight Men's Single Sculls (LM1x)

The favourite in the lightweight men's single sculls might be Australia's Sean Murphy. Murphy won at the second World Rowing Cup a few weeks ago ahead of Hungary and Poland. In the absence of these two, challenges are likely to come from Germany's Lucas Schaefer and Croatia's Luka Radonic.

Lightweight Men's Pair (LM2-)

In the lightweight men's pair, the crew to beat is probably the Czech Republic. Jiri Kopac and Jan Hajek have switched between sculling and sweeping and have a handful of medals to their name.

Lightweight Women's Quadruple Sculls (LW4x)

It will be a close race in the lightweight women's quadruple sculls. The Netherlands, Germany and China are all top countries in lightweight rowing and they have entered quick crews.

Lightweight Men's Quadruple Sculls (LM4x)

In the lightweight men's quadruple sculls the crew to beat might be the Netherlands. They finished second at the European Rowing Championships. They will face tough competition from Germany and China.

Para PR1 Women's Single Sculls (PR1 W1x)

The favourite in the para PR1 women's single sculls has to be Birgit Skarstein of Norway. Skarstein has dominated this boat class for the last two years and is likely to remain there. But watch out for Israel's Moran Samuel. She is the silver medallist from last year's World Rowing Championships. And keep an eye on Ukraine's Anna Shermet. Shermete finished third at the World Rowing Cup II.

Para PR1 Men's Single Sculls (PR1 M1x)

This is the second World Rowing Cup for the para-rowing disciplines and in the para PR1 men's single sculls there is no doubt about the favourite. Ukraine's Roman Polianksyi has shown his form this year by winning the FISA International Para-Rowing Regatta and the second World Rowing Cup ahead of Australia's Erik Horrie. Horrie is not racing in Rotterdam, leaving a spot open on the podium. Watch out for Lithuania's Augustus Navickas who finished fifth in Poznan and Brazil's Rene Pereira who was an A-finalist at last year's World Rowing Championships.

Para PR2 Mixed Double Sculls (PR2 Mix2x)

Annika van der Meer and Corne de Koning from the Netherlands seem to be unstoppable in the para PR2 mixed double sculls. They are reigning World Champions and recently won the World Rowing Cup in Poznan. They will go up against Ukraine.

Para PR3 Mixed Coxed Four (PR3 Mix4+)

The top four finishing crews from the second World Rowing Cup in the para PR3 mixed coxed four have not entered, leaving the podium spots open. The Netherlands finished fifth in Poznan, meaning they might have a medal opportunity in front of their home crowd. They are likely to be challenged by the crew from Ukraine.

4 Current season highlights

4.1 Current season summary

With two World Rowing Cups and the European Rowing Championships completed this season, the top international athletes now meet for World Rowing Cup III, the final event before the World Rowing Championships. Here is a quick recap of the 2019 season so far.

The first World Rowing Cup had China on top of the leaderboard. They entered every event possible and secured 61 points to come in first. Poland finished in second with 45 points and the Netherlands was third.

The European Championships was dominated by Germany. They managed to take home five gold medals, followed by the Netherlands and Italy. The German gold medal run included ongoing success in their men's eight which remains unbeaten since 2017.

The second World Rowing Cup in Poznan, Poland, was the biggest event of the season so far with almost 800 athletes entered. It also had an impressive 45 nations entered and was the first showing for crews from Oceania.

Australia and New Zealand started their season with a bang by finishing first and second respectively on World Cup medals and points table. Australia picked up 34 World Cup points with four gold medals and New Zealand finished with 31 points, also with four golds. Italy finished in third, continuing their successful 2019 campaign.

The Australian successes were across the boat classes. They surprised the field by winning gold in the women's eight against tough competition from the United States and Great Britain. Their women's sweep team showed they were on form by finishing second in the women's pair and third in the women's four. Australia also won gold in the lightweight men's single sculls, men's pair and men's four.

New Zealand saw the return of former World Champion Emma Twigg. After three years away from the sport, Twigg was once again on top of the podium. The Kiwis also won gold in the women's pair, the lightweight women's double sculls and the women's double sculls.

Germany once again claimed the title in the men's eight. They have been unstoppable so far, with Great Britain coming closest, but still two seconds behind. Canada took the bronze medal.

The men's single sculls continued to surprise when Denmark's Sverri Nielsen led from start to finish. Nielsen, along with Belarus' Pilip Pavukou, have found their magic this season giving Nielsen his first ever international medal and Pavukou's third for the season. Pavukou finished just three seconds behind Nielsen. Cuba's Angel Fournier-Rodriguez made a comeback, finishing with a bronze medal.

It was the first event of the season for the para-rowing crews and the Netherlands came out strong. Both Corne de Koning and Annika van der Meer set new World Best Times in the para PR2 single sculls. They then came together to win gold in the PR2 mixed double sculls.

The rivalry continued between Ukraine's Roman Polianskyi and Australia's Erik Horrie in the para PR1 men's single. Polianskyi finished with a ten-second lead on Horrie.

Filippi Spirit Award

The award for university rowers, the Filippi Spirit Award encapsulates rowing's core values of fairness, teamwork, inclusiveness, timeless and natural. It recognises the achievements of the next generation of rowers.

The award is open to university student rowers worldwide and is given to the rower that best demonstrates the core values of rowing in his/her social, academic and sporting life.

Filippi Boats has been involved with the award since its inception in 2013 and every year the university rowing club of the winner receives a custom-built, top-of-the-range Filippi eight racing shell. The boat recognises the winner's involvement in the club and is designed to help the club develop young rowers.

A call for nominations for the 2019 Filippi Spirit Award will open in September 2019. To qualify, the applicants must have attended university full-time in the 2019 year and row regularly for a university club.

Filippi Lido S.R.L. (also known as Filippi Boats) is a rowing racing boat manufacturer based in Donoratico, Italy. Since 1980 Filippi has produced top Olympic-class rowing boats.
