Our planet depends on clean water

One of the greatest challenges of our time is to ensure there is enough clean water to support human life, nourish vital habitats and supply industry and agriculture. World Rowing believes that we all have a responsibility to apply environmentally-sustainable practices to our use and management of water. Rowing is a clean water sport and everyone involved in rowing has reason to protect this vital resource.

World Rowing and the Worldwide Fund for Nature (WWF) work together in a global clean water partnership. This engages all rowers, national federations and all rowing clubs to work towards safeguarding their own freshwater environment. A joint action project, the Kafue River & Rowing Centre is a manifestation of this partnership. This project was inspired by the confluence of so many pressures and problems in the Kafue River in Zambia and the need to bring all stakeholders together to discuss and help find solutions.

The development of a multi-purpose facility for water management education and research and the advancement of rowing in the region is underway. The global rowing community is at the forefront of a fundraising campaign for the Centre and a group of high-profile rowers are ambassadors for the cause. Because to help Kafue is to help the world.

1.1 Introduction

Welcome to the 2018 World Rowing Championships. We are now half-way through the Olympic quadrennium which is marked by a consolidation period as athletes move closer to the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games. Plovdiv, Bulgaria is the venue for this consolidation with the crew line ups starting to settle.

Plovdiv's regatta course has the reputation for being a fast race course, so this regatta is likely to reset the World Championship standard. The venue was purpose built for rowing and the prevalence of a direct tail wind coupled with warm water means that we could see some new World Best Times.

International racing was last in Plovdiv just a year ago when the World Rowing Under 23 Championships took place. The course has been a regular venue for international rowing including the non-Olympic World Rowing Championships in 2012.

The 2018 season so far has gone through the World Rowing Cup series which was won overall by Germany. The German success was helped by their flagship boat, the men's eight. The eight took all three World Cup titles despite serious pressure coming from Australia at the final World Cup in Lucerne. Germany also proved strong in the women's quadruple sculls although they still seem to be searching for the perfect line up. Both Poland and the Netherlands were able to pressure Germany.

The men's single sculls lived up to its reputation as the brutally honest boat class. New Zealand raced two boats with Olympic Champion Mahe Drysdale having to prove himself against 2017 World Best Time holder, Robbie Manson. Manson proved the faster sculler by winning the two World Cups he entered and he will thus represent New Zealand at these World Championships. Germany had a similar duel going on with newcomer Oliver Zeidler taking on Tim Ole Naske. Both scullers medalled with Zeidler taking silver to beat Naske at the final World Cup and secure his position on the German team.

Coming second on the World Cup points table was the Netherlands. They started the season by winning ten medals at the first World Cup. Their dominance, however, was tempered with more countries competing at the later World Cups. They continued to be strong in the lightweight women's double featuring Olympic Champion Ilse Paulis now teamed up with under-23 champion Marieke Keijser. The Dutch were also successful in the women's double sculls, the men's and women's quadruple sculls and men's and women's eight.

The women's single sculls was dominated by Switzerland's Jeannine Gmelin who did not lose a race. Gmelin capped off her season by becoming the European Champion. Sometimes Gmelin won by sizeable margins, but both, but both Magdalena Lobnig of Austria and Sanita Puspure of Ireland look to be ready to challenge.

The European Championship title in the men's pair went to the Sinkovic brothers from Croatia at the start of August. Prior to this the World Cups saw the Czech Republic crew of Lukas Helesic and Jakub Prodrzil push the Sinkovic's into second while New Zealand's Thomas Murray and Michael Brake won at World Cup III.

The women's eight and men's double sculls had no clear season leader. The Netherlands won two World Cups but then finished third behind Romania and Great Britain at the European Championships. The men's double had three different winners at the three World Cups – Poland, Great Britain and Lithuania. Then France pulled out a surprise victory at the European Championships. There will be some sorting to do in Plovdiv.

This media guide has been designed for you to bring as much essential information as possible together in one place. It includes background information to help you find your way around our sport including diagrams to explain how rowing works. You will also find detailed statistical information on the current season, past results and a 'Who to watch' preview of each boat class.

1.2 What is FISA?

The World Rowing Federation, FISA (from the French, Fédération Internationale des Sociétés d’Aviron), is the governing body of the sport of rowing. It is empowered by its 153 member National Rowing Federations, the National Olympic Committees and the International Olympic Committee, to govern the sport of rowing.

FISA sets the rules and regulations for the practice of the sport in all its forms (elite, para-rowing, coastal, masters and some aspects of indoor). It organises sanctioned World Rowing events including those for junior and under-23s. It provides advice and expertise for the organisation of rowing regattas, coaching education, rowing development and other matters relating to the sport and its development.

In 2017 FISA celebrated its 125th anniversary. It was founded by representatives from Belgium, France, Italy, Switzerland and Adriatica (now a part of Italy) in Turin, Italy on 25 June 1892. It is the oldest international sports federation in the Olympic movement. FISA established its first headquarters in Lausanne, Switzerland in 1922 and, after moving away, it returned to its roots in February 1996.

FISA’s vision

To encourage the development of the sport of rowing and strengthen the bonds that unite all who enjoy the sport.

FISA’s mission

To make rowing a universally practised and globally relevant sport in all its forms. To effectively and efficiently govern, develop, showcase and promote the sport of rowing and respect and protect the environment when practising the sport.

FISA’s Guiding Principles

- Priority to Rowers and Rowing: The interests, well-being and health of the rowers are always at the centre of our sport. FISA directs its work in the interests of rowers and rowing
- Rowing in all its Forms: FISA recognises the value of the different forms of rowing that exist globally and that enable the sport to be practised by people of differing ages, abilities and training objectives. FISA seeks to both represent and develop all of these different forms of rowing.
- Equality of Opportunity & Fairness: FISA seeks to ensure fairness and equality of opportunity, both in competition and across all levels of the organisation.
- Inclusion & Non-Discrimination: FISA is committed to inclusion and accessibility, strives for gender equality and does not tolerate any form of discrimination.
- Integrity: FISA is committed to the highest ethical standards, is a recognised leader in the fight against doping and is dedicated to preventing the manipulation of competitions.
- Sustainability: FISA carefully assesses sustainability in all its actions and decisions. FISA endorses a responsible and sustainable approach to the planning and staging of its events so as to maximise positive impacts and minimise negative impacts on the environment and surrounding communities.
- Autonomy & Independence: FISA undertakes to preserve the independence and autonomy of international sport.
- Integral Part of World Sport: FISA seeks to ensure a leading position for rowing in the world of sport. FISA is an integral member of the Olympic and Paralympic movements and other leading world sports organisations.

Core values of Rowing

2 Rowing

2.1 About rowing

The origin of rowing

The boat was mankind's most significant mode of transport for centuries and the oar is considered to be the most important invention before the wheel. The first representation of a rowing boat was discovered in Finland and dates back to 5,800 BC. The earliest regatta was held on 16 September 1274 in Venice, Italy, where regattas developed as challenges between gondoliers and boatmen in a variety of rowing boats. Rowing has evolved all over the world wherever people and water mix. The origin of the sport of rowing as we know it today comes from England, where the world-renowned Oxford versus Cambridge University Boat Race was first held in 1829 on the River Thames.

Rowing at the World Rowing Championships

The first World Rowing Championships was staged in Lucerne, Switzerland in 1962. Initially held every four years, the championships soon became an annual event. It is the biggest annual World Rowing event. At the 2017 World Rowing Championships, 69 nations raced with a total of 900 athletes. The year prior, 2016 being an Olympic year, the World Rowing Championships included only non-Olympic boat classes and was combined with the junior and under-23 championships with 1800 athletes competing.

Female boat classes were included on the World Championship programme in 1974, with lightweight categories for both men and women featuring annually from 1985. This year the championship programme in gender equal with the same number of boat classes for men and women. Para-rowing was integrated into the World Rowing Championships programme in 2002. Originally raced over 1000m, in 2017 the length of racing changed to 2000m.

In non-Olympic years, both Olympic and international boat classes compete at the World Rowing Championships, while in Olympic years only international (non-Olympic) boat classes take part

Rowing at the Olympic & Paralympic rowing regattas

Rowing became an Olympic sport in 1896, at the first Olympic Games of the modern era held in Athens, Greece. Rough seas in the Piraeus harbour, however, forced the event to be cancelled which is why rowing won its first Olympic medals four years later in Paris. Women's events were added to the Olympic programme in 1976 and lightweight events in 1996. Para-rowing first appeared at the Paralympic Games in 2008.

The boats

Boats, or shells, were traditionally made from wood. Top level boats are now fabricated from composite materials such as carbon fibre and kevlar. The width of boats varies from approximately 30cm for a single scull and up to 65cm for an eight. Lengths of the different boat types are shown in the diagrams on p14. A small fin is fitted beneath the boat for directional stability. A rudder is attached to the fin or the stern for steering (except on most sculling boats). A white ball (bow ball) is attached to the bow for safety as well as for judging precision of the start and finish of races. A splashboard prevents waves from splashing water aboard. Seats are fitted with wheels which roll on runners or tracks.

The oars

Oars are hollow to reduce weight, attached to the boat by adjustable outriggers. The size and shape of oars is unrestricted, the average length of a sweep oar is 3.70m and of a scull 2.85m.

2.2 Glossary of rowing terms

Blade	Flattened or spoon-shaped end of oar or scull; sometimes used as term for oar
Bow	1 Forward end of boat, in terms of the direction the boat is moving in 2 The rower in the seat nearest the bow
Bow ball	Safety ball fitted to the bow end of racing boat
Boat class	The rowing event pertaining to the type of boat and gender eg men's single scull
Bow side/starboard side	The right hand side of the boat when viewed from the stern
Catch	The part of the stroke when the blade is put in the water
Coxswain/Cox	Person who steers the boat usually from a seat in the stern
Crab	Occurs when rower fails to get the oar out of the water at the end of the stroke, causing the oar to get caught in the water: "catching a crab"
Drive	The part of the stroke between the catch and the finish, when the oar is in the water
Feather	To turn the blade parallel with the water surface at the start of the recovery to reduce wind resistance
Finish/Release	The part of the stroke when the blade is taken out of the water
Layback	The amount of backward lean of the rower's upper body towards the bow at the finish of the stroke
Length	The length of a boat ("They won by one length")
Recovery	The part of the stroke cycle between the finish and the catch in which the blade is feathered and out of the water
Regatta	A competitive event raced in boats
Sculling	Rowing when each person rows with two oars

Slide	1 The parallel rails on which the boat seats move 2 The action of the boat seat with wheels on parallel rails
Square	When the blade is perpendicular to the water
Stern	The back end of the boat in terms of the direction in which the boat is moving
Stroke	1 The complete cycle of the oar going from the catch back to the catch 2 The rower seated nearest to the stern of the boat
Stroke rate	The number of strokes per minute that a crew is rowing, as in the number of times a blade goes in the water each minute
Stroke side/Port side	The left-hand side of the boat when viewed from the stern
Sweep rowing	Rowing when each person rows with one oar

2.3 Boat classes

Rowing boat classes are either sculling or sweep events. In sculling (denoted by an 'x'), each rower has two oars whereas in sweep rowing (denoted by a '-' for boats without coxswains and '+' for coxed boats) each person in the boat has one oar.

2.4 How to row

1 Entry/Catch

- Raise only the hands
- Do not “open” the body
- Enter the water before beginning the leg drive

6 Finish/Release

- Forearms and hands move oar handles down and around in a fluid continuous manner, releasing the oars from the water

2 Drive No. 1

- Almost no change in the body position
- The body is “hanging” on the oar and footstretcher
- Work is done exclusively by the legs

7 Recovery No.1

- Hands move away from the body at a constant speed

3 Drive No. 2

- Upper body slowly takes over the leg drive
- The body starts to “uncoil” in a natural way

8 Recovery No.2

- At the beginning of the slide, arms are past the knees
- There is early forward body angle preparation

4 Drive No. 3

- Legs almost finish their work
- The upper body still continues its swing
- The arms begin their work

9 Recovery No.3

- The slide is at half-way
- The arms and upper body have finished reaching out

5 Drive No. 4

- End of the “layback”
- The arms move quickly and strongly to the body

10 Before Entry

- Last part of the slide
- All movements are finished except continuation of slide with concentration on a direct entry

3.2 World Rowing Championships competition description

The regatta

Races in Olympic, International and para-rowing boat classes are contested over 2000m. Depending upon the number of entries in each event, there will be heats, repechages, quarterfinals, semifinals and finals. A and B finals will be contested in all events with eight or more entries. Where 14 or more crews are entered, C, D, E etc. finals will be contested. Each boat is drawn into a first-round race (the heat) with progression to further rounds depending on placings and the number of entries in accordance with the FISA progression system.

Rowing follows a unique format in that crews have the benefit of a second chance if they are not successful in their first round heat. The repechage is the name for the second round of competition which ensures that every crew has a second chance to advance from the preliminary races to the next round.

Round 1	Heats – after the initial round of heats, every unsuccessful crew has a second chance to advance in the repechages round
Round 2	Repechages – second chance to advance
Round 3	Quarterfinals (only if an event has 25 or more boats competing)
Round 4	Semifinals (only for events with 13 or more boats competing)
Round 5	Finals – A, B, C, D... Finals (In principle, there are no more than six boats per final. The top six boats in the qualification rounds compete in the A-final, the following six in the B-final, etc. Only the rowers who finish in the top three places of the A-final win a medal)

Note: The rounds to which crews advance after each race and the number of crews advancing depends on the number of boats entered in each event as defined in the FISA progression system and is shown on the start lists and result lists. A full description of the progression system can be found in Appendix 6 of the FISA Rules of Racing.

Lanes

There are normally eight buoyed lanes, of which six are used at one time for racing. Each lane is 13.5m wide. A draw is conducted before the beginning of racing to determine the allocation of crews to heats and to lane positions within each heat. A seeding panel determines in advance which crews will be seeded. The purpose of seeding is to avoid having all the faster boats in a boat class being drawn into the same heat in the first round.

Competition schedule contingency plan

As for any outdoor sporting event, it is possible that the competition schedule may be disrupted due to adverse weather conditions. The FISA Rules allow for the implementation of certain contingency plans in order to ensure that the competition can be completed within the available days.

FISA has identified a number of contingency plans or options that can be implemented, depending on the severity of the conditions and the threatened disruption to the competition schedule. These include:

- Changing the start times of the races and/or the intervals between races.
- Combining different groups on the same day.
- Combining two rounds in the same day.
- Combining finals on three days, two days or all on one day.
- Time trials.

Dead-heat rules and procedures

If there is a dead-heat between crews, there are several options to resolve it depending on the round of the competition. In many cases, the tie is resolved by having the relevant crews row a 2000m race again in order to find a winner. If, in a final, there is a dead-heat both crews will be given equal placing and the next placing left vacant with no re-row. If the tied placing is for a medal position, additional medals will be awarded.

Crew changes

Up to half of the rowers in all crews entered may be substituted at least one hour before the first heat of the boat class. A crew which has already raced in the heat of its boat class may not make changes in the crew, except in the case of a serious illness or injury. A single sculler who entered and falls ill or is injured may be replaced before their heat. No substitution may be made for a single sculler after their first heat.

Penalties / disqualification rules / exclusion

The Board of the Jury may impose the following penalties: reprimand, yellow card (applying to the next round in which the crew competes), exclusion (from all the rounds of the event in question), relegation where this is specifically provided in the Rules (to last place in its race of that round), disqualification (from all boat classes in the regatta), or any other appropriate measure in order to assure the fairness of the competition. A crew arriving at the start after the start time or causing two false starts will be excluded. A yellow card is equivalent to one false start. Crews interfering with opponents during the race may be excluded by the umpire.

4 Who to watch

4.1 Who to watch

Women's pair (W2-)

Seventeen crews are entered in the women's pair, making this a hotly contested category. Kerri Gowler and Grace Prendergast of New Zealand will be looking to lock up the best title of the year; World Champions. These two have been unstoppable so far this season, winning the two World Rowing Cups in which they were entered.

However, at the final world cup in Lucerne, Canada and the United States raced them to the line, with Canada finishing just 0.43 seconds behind Kiwi pair. Canada also won the first World Cup of the season, making them definite contenders for the podium.

The United States had two crews in the top four in Lucerne, but their pick for the women's pair in Plovdiv is a new combination. Watch out too for the European Champions from Romania. They've made one change to their line-up and are likely to be fast. Italy's duo has been on the podium this season, finishing with a bronze at the European Championships. With the right conditions, they stand a chance as well.

Men's pair (M2-)

The top of the podium in the men's pair is anyone's guess. After complete domination in the men's double sculls, the Sinkovic brothers have been fighting for the same title in the men's pair. But it hasn't been easy. The Czech combination of Jakob Podrazil and Lukas Helesic beat them to the line at the second World Cup. Then at the third World Cup New Zealand's combination of Thomas Murray and Michael Brake scored gold with Podrazil and Helesic having to settle for bronze.

At the European Championships, the Sinkovic's were back on top, followed by an extremely fast French crew of Theophile and Valentin Onfroy. The Onfroy brothers also picked up bronze and silver at the World Cups. The Czech crew did not compete in Glasgow and it was Romania who took home the bronze medal.

The reigning World Champions Italy have not competed together so far this year and another line-up is entered in Plovdiv. Watch out too for Great Britain. They've been trying different line-ups throughout the season and they are likely to be fast as well.

Lightweight men's double sculls (LM2x)

The lightweight men's double keeps everyone on their toes. At the four major regattas so far this season, we've seen four different gold medallists: Poland, Italy, Ireland and Norway. In the podium mix there's also Belgium and Denmark.

The first event of the season went to Poland, followed closely by Ireland and Belgium. The second World Cup went to Italy, followed by Norway and Belgium. The third World Cup was won by Ireland, again followed closely by Belgium and Denmark. Then at the European Championships, Norway took home gold ahead of Ireland and Italy.

To top it all off, the margins have always been within about three seconds. Suffice it to say that there are six crews who, on any given day, are within about one second of each other's speed. For this one, you're just going to have to watch them all.

Lightweight women's double sculls (LW2x)

There are 21 crews contending for medals and a number have had repeated success throughout the season. The Dutch combination of Marieke Keijser and Ilse Paulis definitely stand out. This is their first season together and they shot out with a bang by winning the first World Cup. They finished with silver at the second World Cup, just behind Italy before going on to win the European Championships ahead of Poland and Switzerland. They are now after the World Championship title.

Keijser and Paulis will face challenges from Poland and New Zealand. The Polish double had a tough start to the season, finishing in the B-final. After a temporary line-up change for World Cup II, Joanna Dorociak came back to the boat for World Cup III and, together with Weronika Deresz, won gold. The Polish then finished in silver medal position behind the Netherlands at the European Championships.

New Zealand only competed at one event this season where they finished second behind Poland. Watch out too for Switzerland and Italy. They picked up two bronze medals at World Cup III and the European Championships. The Italians beat the Dutch at World Cup II of the season.

Women's quadruple sculls (W4x)

This season has seen several leaders in this boat class. Early in the season, the Dutch were on top of the podium. Their line-up saw the addition of Karolien Florijn, after World Champion and Olympic silver-medallist Inge Janssen decided to take a one-year break.

But the Dutch success was muted as the season went on. Germany, who had a hard time finding the right line-up following their Olympic success in 2016, finally landed gold at World Cup II. They followed it up with gold in Lucerne and have entered the same line-up for the World Championships.

The Dutch and the Germans are likely to face challenges from Poland and Australia. Poland worked their way to gold at the European Championships after winning two silver medals in the World Cup series. Australia finished third at the second World Cup, only to find themselves back in 6th in Lucerne. Also keep an eye on Ukraine. They are Olympic Champions from 2012, but have had inconsistent results ever since.

Men's quadruple sculls (M4x)

Great Britain might be the crew to beat. They won both the first and the third World Cups and look to be leading the way for the British squad. Italy won the second World Cup and the European Championships, the only two events in which they were entered this year. They will face the top British line up in Plovdiv for the first time.

Keep an eye out for Germany and Poland. They have fielded an extremely fast line-up that includes Hans Gruhne, the only remaining member from the German Olympic Champion quad. Poland has been on the podium twice this season. And don't forget about the reigning World Champions from Lithuania. They had some trouble with early-season speed, but looked better at the European Championships.

An outside chance could be New Zealand. They have a new addition: double Olympic Champion, Mahe Drysdale.

Men's double sculls (M2x)

The men's double has seen inconsistent results this season. Reigning World Champions, New Zealand did not medal. Silver medallists from 2017, Poland picked up a win at World Cup III, but were bumped off the podium at the European Championships.

Great Britain has showed the most consistent results with Jack Beaumont and Angus Groom taking gold and silver during the World Cup series.

Keep an eye for Germany and Switzerland. The German duo of Lars Hartig and Timo Piontek finished with silver at two of the World Cups. They were pushed both times by the Swiss double of Nico Stahlberg and Roman Roeoesli. But the Swiss have changed their line-up in Plovdiv, switching in Barnabe Delarze for Nico Stahlberg.

Women's double sculls (W2x)

The Kiwis have to be the ones to watch. Brooke Donoghue and Olivia Loe are not only reigning World Champions, they also won both World Rowing Cups that they entered.

A couple crews stand a chance of catching them including the Dutch duo of Lisa Scheenaard and Roos de Jong. This double won the first World Cup, then went through some line-up changes before racing again in Glasgow to take a silver medal.

Watch out too for the United States. Ellen Tomek and Meghan O'Leary have earned many medals over the years, including silver at last year's World Championships. They competed only once so far this season and finished third behind New Zealand and Canada. Don't forget about Lithuania either. They've been on the podium a couple times so far this season.

Men's single sculls (M1x)

The New Zealand and German selections in the men's single sculls this season meant that these two countries often dominated the racing. New Zealand had to choose between double Olympic Champion, Mahe Drysdale and World Best Time holder, Robert Manson.

Germany had to choose between the young Tim Ole Naske, the Junior and Under-23 World Champion and the even-younger Oliver Zeidler, a newcomer with rowing in his blood.

It all came down to World Cup III to decide. In the final sprint, it was clear. Manson was and Zeidler second. They gained spots for their country to compete in Plovdiv. But did these scullers have to peak too early in the season?

They will be up against reigning World Champion Ondrej Synek of the Czech Republic. And keep an eye on Kjetil Borch of Norway. He came out of the Olympic bronze-medal double with Olaf Tufte and recently took the European Champion title.

Women's single sculls (W1x)

It is hard to believe that anyone stands a chance of toppling Jeannine Gmelin's (SUI) dominance. Gmelin fought her way to the top during the 2016 and 2017 seasons, finishing as World Champion last year. Since then, she has gone unbeaten winning all three World Cups as well as the Henley Royal Regatta and the European Championships.

We've seen a great performance from Ireland's Sanita Puspure this season. Puspure has two silver medals from the World Cups and her final sprint at World Cup III brought her within one second of Gmelin.

Watch out too for Magdalena Lobnig of Austria. Lobnig has medalled at two World Cups and took silver in Glasgow. And don't forget about Canada's Carling Zeeman. She only competed once so far this season, but finished third behind Lobnig.

Women's Four (W4-)

Australia seems to be the dominant force. They are the reigning World Champion and have retained the same line-up for the 2018 season. They entered the second and third World Cups and won both.

Australia is, however, likely to face challenges from Denmark, Russia and Great Britain. Denmark had a slow start to the season, but finished closely behind Australia at World Cup III.

Russia won the European Championships, ahead of Romania and Poland who have also boated solid crews this season. But the Russians did not fare well early in the season. Great Britain also faced mixed results, finishing second at World Cup II then picking up two fourths.

Men's four (M4-)

Australia is the crew to beat. They are the reigning World Champions, have retained the same line-up and, at the second and third World Cups this season, they had a substantial lead over the rest of the field in taking gold. Can anyone beat them?

Romania has mounted a good challenge. Romania finished second at World Rowing Cup II, just three seconds behind Australia. They went on to win the European Championships and have entered the same line-up in Plovdiv.

Watch out too for South Africa. They competed only once so far this year in Lucerne, where they finished third. Keep an eye on the Netherlands and Great Britain as well. They've both picked up medals so far this season, but have also frequently changed their line-ups.

Women's eight (W8+)

There are eight crews entered and we expect a great battle. Many of these crews have not had the opportunity to race each other this season, so it's difficult to know where they all sit.

The Dutch opened the season with a dominant performance and will have a strong line-up in Plovdiv. New Zealand won at World Rowing Cup III with Canada hot on their tails, fiery after their silver-medal win at last year's World Championships.

Reigning World Champions, Romania struggled to find speed in the World Cups. But they topped the podium at the European Championships. Keep an eye too on the Americans. They dominated women's sweep rowing for ten years and will be back to prove themselves.

Men's eight (M8+)

The reigning World Champions, Germany seem to be unbeatable. They have won everything they entered this season, despite challenges in some of the early rounds of racing.

Australia came the closest at World Cup III with Germany taking gold just in the last strokes. If the Australians has gained speed in the past few months, they are in a good position.

The British are also medal contenders. They struggled with illness and injury early in the season, but are likely to have now found the best combination. And don't rule out the Dutch. They had two top-level eights to choose from and certainly have the man-power to be on the podium.

4.2 International boat classes

With 22 entries in the lightweight women's single sculls, the competition will be fierce and Belarus' Alena Furman looks ready to take it on. Furman took home gold three times already this year and was only outpaced by Poland's Joanna Dorociak, who has moved back into the double. Watch out too for Italy's young star, Clara Guerra.

In the lightweight men's single sculls, all eyes will be on the race between Switzerland's Michael Schmid and Germany's Jason Osborne. Osborne won the first two World Rowing Cups, but did not race later in the season. Schmid picked up the title at the third World Cup and the European Championships. Watch out too for Italy's Martino Goretti, he has sprinted his way on to the podium several times this season.

Several countries have historical success in the lightweight quadruple sculls category, on both the men's and the women's side. They have not raced often this year, but when they do, Italy typically dominates. Watch out too for Germany. They have depth in their lightweight rowing programme and have put some big names into their quadruple sculls. And don't forget about Denmark. Lightweight rowing has a strong tradition in Denmark and they seem to be using the quadruple sculls as a development boat.

4.3 Para-rowing boat classes

There are some standout names in the PR1 para men's and women's single sculls. Birgit Skarstein of Norway is not only the reigning World Champion, she also holds the World Best Time and she won everything she entered this year. But Skarstein will face tough competition from Moran Samuel of Israel. Samuel finished second at last year's World Championships and has not raced yet this season. On the men's side, the battle will likely be on between Australia's Erik Horrie, Ukraine's Roman Polianskyi and Russia's Alexey Chuvashhev. This was the one, two, three at last year's World Championships and these athletes have shown they are on-form again this season.

The PR2 para mixed double sculls sees the return of the Dutch duo, Annika van der Meer and Corne de Koning. These two have won everything they raced so far this season and look set for another world title. Both Van der Meer and Koning will also race in the new category, the PR2 para single sculls. France's Perle Bouge, who competed for many years in the double and has now transitioned to the single, will challenge Van der Meer. De Koning will face several athletes competing for the first time at the international level.

Thirteen crews have entered the PR3 para mixed coxed four. Great Britain has been dominant in this category and will be looking to maintain their title. Watch out too for the United States and Canada. They both have historical medal success in this boat class.
